Non-permanent Residents

- Non-permanent Residents must provide what is stated under, "Required Documentation," and it must be unexpired at time of close. On a case-by-case basis, alternative documentation approved by the USCIS may be acceptable.
  - In addition, any borrowers with non-work visas require an unexpired Employment Authorization Document (EAD).
- FHA requires an EAD issued by the USCIS with a full year left before expiration. Less than one year requires a history of renewals (Streamlines are exempt).

Permanent Residents

- Permanent Residents must provide either an unexpired Permanent Resident Card or, an expired Permanent Resident Card and current passport with an I-551 stamp showing an unexpired date.
- Conditional Permanent Residents (e.g. spouse of US Citizen) must provide:
  - evidence of unexpired conditional Permanent Resident card
  - if the conditional Permanent Residence status has expired and the borrower did not file to remove the conditional status during the 90-day period, obtain evidence from USCIS that the borrower had a good cause for failing to petition on time in addition to evidence for petition to remove conditional status.

Other

- On a Fannie Mae, DU-approved loan ONLY, a borrower with Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) status might be acceptable if:
- they have a valid Social Security Number (SSN)
  - they have a valid, unexpired Employment Authorization Document (EAD), and
  - they meet the same employment/income history and continuity guidelines that applies to all borrowers.
  - In general, the documentation provided for residency must be recent when used to verify the borrower is still legally present within the United States. If the borrower has a pending application for the extension of residency or legal presence, it should be dated within six months of the loan application.
